

She makes herself busy sorting out his shirts and mending socks and putting buttons on his shirts from the laundry.

He tells her that he likes her, but there is nothing more than friendship in their relationship.

Her excuse for staying in his cabin is that every berth is taken on the boat.