

discovered that he has been murdered. She screams and faints.

Fade.

She is in the Chinese court. She tells the officials that the waiter knows something about this and that he knows the gangster that threatened her, but the Chinese take little trouble to investigate and she is left with no satisfaction.

She renounces the court and the whole system that won't take the trouble to protect Russians. Other people are protected but not them. After she heaps a tirade on them, she is sentenced to contempt