

Suggestion to Right the World

Introduce a law, that for every personal attack in the newspapers or for any editorial criticism of a personal nature, the newspaper must allot the same space and the same prominence in their paper to their culprit, victim, or person they have attacked or criticized and to do so without charge, so that they may have the same fair opportunity to defend themselves in the same democratic way in which they were publicly criticized.

This is the only means of establishing a free and enduring press.