

You have to admire her for her courage. She's all alone, fighting and battling with a stupid ignorant world whose ideas belong to the medieval ages even then. It was less a pressure that it is today with its passports and credentials you have to carry with every step you take.