

Is it the American way that each individual must think as the American Legion think? Is the individual to be brow-beaten and cowered into doing and thinking as they do? Are they to control thought? Must we in the theatre be answerable for our actions to these high pressure groups? Have they the right to delegate themselves to a power of authority that dictates to the hundreds of millions of Americans what they can see and what they can't see at the cost of threat, boycott, [xxx] and subversive punishment against private enterprise?

Is this not a self-elected government in operation to the legal government of the U.S., elected by the people? Does it not weaken the people's power? Where will the power of the American Legion and these other high pressure groups end if not stopped in some way.

Does not this illegal action impinge on every department of the US government—the Legislative, the Executive and the Judicial?
