

The prostitutes were very great friends. They frequented the same cafes and lived opposite each other in the new St. [xxx] was four years older than Natascha and kept a man. Natascha, although younger, was more of a malcontent than [xxx] She never kept anybody but herself. Eventually, her one idea was to save money so that she could buy a small pension outside of Paris. She was worldly wise where men were concerned and was never hurt by this. She had no parents and the only one for whom she had the slightest regard for was M.